Our vocation is to struggle against everything which is sin, everything which is evil, to free ourselves by faith and obedience, by love and ascetical endeavor of everything which is not worthy of God, of everything to which God cannot unite Himself. And then, give ourselves unto life and unto death for the salvation of every person, of every nation and of the world. This is what this feast of Epiphany tells us. Let us follow the footsteps of our Master, let us become truly human beings, and as human, unite ourselves with God in Christ by the power of the Spirit, laying down our lives, and offering, if necessary, our death for the salvation of all who need it (Metropolitan Anthony Bloom)
